Dzieci Paratheatrical Workshop

An increasing number of people are feeling the need to come together in more essential ways. For Theatre Group Dzieci, achieving this quality of communion involves creative encounters that transcend typical human barriers. The Dzieci Para-theatrical Workshop employs elements of ensemble theatre, meditation, and ritual, leading towards a heightening of consciousness and deepening of community.

After three decades of investigation and practice, company director, Matt Mitler, has developed a methodology that allows for both primal and spiritual interaction, forsaking the common masks of habit and personality. From studies in experimental theatre with Jerzy Grotowski and in psychology, with Carl Rogers, and an intensive spiritual training, Mr. Mitler eliminates language and facilitates through direct transmission to the core of being.

Along with Dzieci, Mitler brings this work into hospitals and institutions that serve marginalized and disadvantaged communities who have deep therapeutic needs. He also works with professionals and students in the fields of religion, psychology, art therapy, and theatre, serving all who seek a creative communal environment that is challenging and inspiring.
